Castleton Commodities International LLC Acquires 1,210 MW Power Plant

Stamford, CT – May 1, 2013. Castleton Commodities International LLC (“CCI” or the “Company”) announced that it has closed on its acquisition, through one of its subsidiaries, of a dual fuel-fired electric power generating facility located in the Town of Newburgh in Orange County, New York (“Roseton” or the “Facility”) from Dynegy Inc.

Roseton is a 1,210 megawatt facility using tangentially fired CE steam boilers and GE 3600 RPM turbines and is capable of running on both natural gas and fuel oil. The Facility supplies power into the NYISO Zone G market, and is 43 miles north of New York City.

“We are pleased to add Roseton to our growing portfolio of energy assets, and we look forward to using our expertise in the power markets to help maximize Roseton’s contribution to the stability and reliability of New York’s power pool,” said William C. Reed II, President and Chief Executive Officer of CCI.

“Roseton is our third power generation asset acquisition, and we continue to actively pursue additional investments in this space,” added Herbert Quan, Vice President in CCI’s asset investments business.

Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP served as legal counsel to CCI in the transaction.

About Castleton Commodities International LLC
